Do the Math. In my recent Context of Calories post, I explained how the different macronutrients we eat at each meal (fats, proteins, and carbohydrates) have different effects in the body. I suggested that, despite their raw calorie values, it's far more important to get a lasting intuitive sense of how much of each macronutrient you need and when you need it (or not).

Ok, so this is an old thread, but I was just about to say this about cholesterol. If a concerned mom decides to believe all that Harvard says as absolute authority, then she should also read their reports on how saturated fats do not cause high cholesterol and how cholesterol does not cause heart disease.
